OUR TOWN

The cause of civil liberty must not be surrendered at the end of one or even one hundred defeats—If there is anything that is the duty of the whole people never to intrust to any hands but their own, that thing is the preservation and perpetuity of their own liberties and institutions—I fear you do not fully comprehend the danger of abridging the liberties of the people. A government had better go to the very extreme of toleration than do aught that could be construed into an interference with or to jeopardize in any degree the common rights of the citizen.

—Abraham Lincoln.

Lincoln was the man of the people. This rugged American on whom "was laid a sense om Mystic Powers" represents an ideal in human character that is one of the greater stabilizing influences in the republic. From obscurity to places of power without losing the common touch. On February 12, 1809, one hundred and seventeen years ago today in a cabin far from the reaches of society and civilization, away in the hills of Kentucky this typical American was born. In 1865 occurred his death. In this span of years saw the force of his character written with impressive emphasis upon the life of the republic he died to save. In his generous nature he sought to bind its wounds and to look beyond the shadows. The poet tells us that "when he fell in whirlwind, he went as when a lordly cedar, green with boughs, goes down with a great shout upon the hills, and leaves a lonesome place against the sky."

NEW FACES IN CITY GOVERNMENT FOR 1926

ELECTION NEXT YEAR FOR ALDERMEN DUE TO CHANGE IN METHOD OF SELECTING

New faces are to be found in the personnel of the city government for the next fiscal year.

W. O. Triggs is the only alderman to hold over for another term but will have to run again next February, being elected for the one year term. Wm. R. Rogers and Logan Green are also elected for the one year term and will have to run again next February.

This arrangement gets back to the old method as contemplated by law in selecting aldermen, giving the city an election every two years but electing two or three aldermen.

Ray Robinson who has been city marshal for the past two years did not stand for re-election.

Vince Lucas who was defeated was city marshal for two years being defeated in 1924 by Mr. Robinson in a four cornered race in which R. L. Batte, Jr. was a candidate.

B. Slocomb who comes to this office has been deputy sheriff for the past two years, has a wide circle of friends and his administration will be watched with interest.

Among the aldermen J. C. Joseph and J. B. White for the new faces have had experience. Wm. R. Rogers and Logan Green have had no previous service on the council but will be good materials for that body.

Judd G. Davis was unopposed for Mayor as was Paul Webb for city attorney.

The new officers are sworn in in April when the fiscal year for the city begins.

Sam Hefley is the only new member of the Democratic Executive committee, succeeding Dr. James Watson who declined to offer for re-election.

THE DAVILLA 4H CLUB

The Davilla 4H club met on Thursday, February 4, 1926. There were about seventeen members present. We had an addition of two members, which were welcomed.

Various subjects were discussed, among them "Home Improvement". Refreshments were served.

The girls go into this work with a vim and I believe if the spirit that now prevails, continues, we will make a great success.

NEW COUNCIL SELECTED TO DIRECT GOVERNMENT

SLOCOMB AND TYSON WIN BY LARGEST MAJORITIES IN THE RACES

Majorities amounting to landslides were returned in practically all contests in the city election on Tuesday when the people went to the polls to register their choice for officers who will direct the government for the next two years.

The only contest that was in anyway doubtful was the one in the two year division of the aldermen's ticket. F. E. Jackson and J. B. White were the storm center of voting, this race proving the only center of interest on the day of the election. Mr. White defeated Mr. Jackson by 74 votes.

Dan Tyson defeated Dan Gunn by a majority that reached over 400 while B. Slocomb for marshal defeated Lucas by nearly 300 votes. In the race for treasurer R. D. Brown, incumbent defeated Miss Theresa Jensen by 267 votes.

The officers elected are: Judd G. Davis, Mayor; J. B. White, J. C. Joseph, Wm. R. Rogers, Logan Green and W. O. Triggs, Aldermen; Paul Webb, city attorney; R. D. Brown, secretary and treasurer; Dan Tyson, assessor and collector; B. Slocomb, city marshal. On the Democratic executive committee T. F. Hardy was re-elected chairman and the other members elected are: Sam Hefley, E. C. Cammer, S. M. Burns and J. W. Coleman.

In a table published on this page is the number of votes received by each candidate.

The election developed few surprises. Close observers doped the winners but the majorities received by the candidates were much larger than was anticipated.

The klan element did not figure in the voting as had been anticipated. Political observers say that the klan issue is no longer to be reckoned with as a strong factor in politics but the secret order that was strong two years and four years back still has a neucles around which it is able to rally a good sprinkling of votes.

The election passed quietly. There were 1149 votes cast in the election of 1924 and 1166 in the election on Tuesday, a slight increase.

NEW CITY MARSHAL TO HAVE DOWN TOWN OFFICE

DESIRES TO GIVE PEOPLE BEST OF SERVICE IN OFFICE HE WON

B. Slocomb, city marshal elect, will inaugurate a new service to the people when he takes office in April.

Among the things he will do is to secure a down town office and be available at all times when the people want him.

Mr. Slocomb will no doubt have the active support of the Mayor and council in anything he may undertake for the service of the people.

The city now has no place to hold court except the fire station and since the purchase of the new truck no room is available for that purpose.

Mr. Slocomb has been ill for the past two weeks but is now at his post of duty at the office of sheriff Blaylock where he is deputy.

TO THE PEOPLE

The people have elected me to the office of City Marshal by giving me a large majority at the polls on last Tuesday.

I am grateful to the people and to my loyal friends who took care of my interests when I was ill at my home and could not continue my campaign.

In my service as city marshal I shall endeavor to serve the people to the best of my ability, enforcing the law fair and impartially.

For the splendid support given me I am grateful and shall seek to repay the people in good and efficient service in the office to which they have elected me.

Sincerely yours,
B. SLOCOMB

Faculty Meets in "Bloody Conflict."

On Thursday afternoon the faculty of the Ada Henderson school met in bloody conflict. They "played" basket ball. Such clawing, scrambling and falling over the ball was never seen before.

The line-up was as follows:

Ada Henderson School	Yoe-Hi
Forwards	Forwards
Miss Blanche Hensley	Miss Elenor Hensley
Mrs. Neighbors	Miss Blair
Centers	Centers
Miss Dallie Young	Miss Aileen Tubbs
Miss Earl Bragg	Miss Louise Berry
Guards	Guards
Miss Blanche Wiley	Miss Mary Lake Henderson
Miss Fischer	Miss Alma Edmonson

Considering the length of time extending between these combatants' last game and this game we must say the passes were extraordinary. After the clouds of dust had rolled away we found the score 10-7 in Ada Henderson School's favor.

Some really amusing snapshots were made and the students are looking forward to the faculties' next scramble. The Ada Henderson team were the proud possessors of a box of candy presented to them by Mr. Grady Houston as a reward for the 3-point lead.

Yoemen Win County Championship

Saturday, February 6, the Yoemen met the Yarrellton Giants in a quintet battle for the championship of Milam county.

The game started at 2:30 and the Yoemen won the north basket on the toss-up. The playing began in earnest at the very start. The score at end of the quarter was 4 to 2 in favor of Yarrellton. Wilderson seemed to be the outstanding star for the Giants as he looped several goals. The half ended with the Yoemen leading by the score of 11 to 6.

Reichert, Childress and Fikes had starred in the first half of the game, and Triggs, not to be outwitted, began the second half with a fight never before shown. Guarding his man, swerving and twisting down the field forever with his man. Wilkerson played super basketball. Marmon and Reichert, who had been playing a fast, hard game, was taken out of the play on personal fouls to be substituted for Fikes. McKinney had substituted for Fikes earlier in the game. Slocomb had also relieved Childress. The game ended with the Yoemen victorious and champions of Milam county. The final score was 16 to 8 in favor of the Yoemen.

Childress was high point man of the tournament and of the Yarrellton game. Wilkerson was high point man for Yarrellton. The Yoemen have had a good season and it has been proven by Coach John Cherry of the Yarrellton Giants that all of the Yoemen have been eligible throughout the season.

Basket Ball Team Entertained.

Last Monday night the victorious Yoe Hi Basketball Team enjoyed a picnic and an oyster supper. They assembled at the Yoe High about 7:30 with their fair damsels and then started out for a picnic. It was more of a "follow the leader affair," for they went over hills, plains and ditches without ever reaching a destination. At nine-thirty the party went to the Blue Bonnet Cafe where Mr. Fikes gave them a royal oyster feast.

Then came the time of oratory. The first speaker of the evening was Captain Wee Triggs, who gave some fundamentals of basketball. He then introduced Hugh McKinney who made an address and introduced Bill Baskin. William made an eloquent oration and introduced Coach Lacy. All these toasts were enjoyed and ev-

SAM C. COBB BURIED IN CAMERON TUESDAY

NATIVE TEXAN AND RESIDENT HERE FOR YEARS DIES OF PNEUMONIA

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs.
He most lives who thinks most,
feels the noblest, acts the best."

Samuel Clark Cobb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Griffin Cobb, was born near Branchville, Milam county, Tex., January 28, 1873 and died in Hamilton Texas, February 7, 1926 at 3:45 p. m. He was educated in the country schools of Milam County and in Cameron. He attended Hill's Business college in Waco and later embarked in business in Cameron. He was for many years a prominent farmer in the Marlow community but moved to Cameron and became book-keeper for a gin in Cameron. About this time he lost his first wife, who was Miss Maybell Williams, shortly after the birth of their little daughter, Maybell in 1917.

After the death of their mother Mr. Cobb was left with the care of his three children, Mary, Eula and Jack, the infant daughter being given into the care of Mrs. Tom Evard of Minerva. Jack, the little son, suffered a tragic death from fire about a year after the death of his mother. The three daughters survive their father.

In February 3, 1919, Mr. Cobb was married to Mrs. Era Whitaker in Cameron and she with two children, Sam and Arthur survive him.

Mr. Cobb is also survived by one brother, Mr. Arthur Cobb of Lubbock and by three sisters, Mesdames Eugene Le Baron of Brawley, California, Horace Monroe of Grandview, Texas, and by Miss Eula Cobb of Hunter College, New York City.

Mr. Cobb joined the Baptist church at Marlow in 1910. Recently the discovery of oil on some of his holdings in Stephens county had given him a gratifying income and with his family he had recently chosen Hamilton as a place of temporary residence, that place being about midway between his old home in Cameron and the oil fields in which he was interested. Their household effects had not been unpacked in their new location before Mr. Cobb's last illness began with a hard rigor on the night of January 25th. The Hamilton physician had some of the best doctors in the state in consultation over the case but owing to heart complications the illness proved fatal.

He was brought here by his family and his brother, Mr. Arthur Cobb for interment. The body was paid every tribute of respect at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Green, where it was carried from the Santa Fe train on Monday afternoon. Rev. H. G. Kenney of the Presbyterian church conducted the funeral from the Baptist church on Tuesday afternoon. The grave was covered with beautiful floral offerings.

The following friends were pallbearers: Messrs John Dobbins, L. L. Blaylock, A. N. Green, F. E. Jackson, Graham Gillis, M. G. Cox, Giles McDermott and Walter Sharpe. The following relatives were called here by his death: Mr. and Mrs. Horace Monroe of Grandview, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Meyers of Temple, Mr. Arthur Cobb Miss Pauline Cobb of Lubbock, Mrs. Augie Woodward of Lexington. A large concourse of Marlow and Cameron friends attended.

Man Is Injured In Car Wreck Saturday

O. V. Tyler, 47 years old, was probably fatally injured Saturday afternoon when his car overturned descending a hill four miles west of Rogers on the road to Temple. After a preliminary examination by physician of Rogers who rushed to the scene of the accident, Mr. Tyler was brought to a local hospital by the Temple-Cameron bus and was in a critical condition there late Saturday night.

Following an operation attendant physicians and surgeons said that they could hold out little hope for his recovery, his head having been badly crushed and the skull fractured. He was enroute to Temple in a Ford touring car and was alone when the accident happened. The car was overturned and was badly wrecked.

Mr. Tyler lives on North Twenty-first street and is an employe of the Santa Fe here. He formerly lived at Rogers and is a member of one of the leading families of that community.

Vast Expansion and Advanced Equipment make New Prices Possible

The history of Dodge Brothers drastic price reductions is simple and brief.

A better and better product followed by greater and greater demand.

To meet that demand, an expansion of buildings and equipment involving an expenditure of more than $10,000,000.

Output vastly increased, with consequent reduction in the cost of materials and production.

Installation of advanced labor-saving and quality-increasing equipment. For instance, one giant steel-body press costing $10,000 replaces ten former presses costing $7,500 each, and does the work more efficiently.

Result: The finest line of vehicles in Dodge Brothers history at prices that seem incredible in view of Dodge Brothers traditional quality—

That seem more incredible still when considered in connection with improvements that include—

Rich and attractive new colors.
Smart and stylish new body lines.
Four dependable cylinders.
Absolute smoothness of engine operation.
Greater power, snap and elasticity.

And advanced steel body and windshield construction that afford exceptional driving vision at a time when clear vision and safety are paramount in the mind of every motorist.

The Power of Thought

By WARREN ORDWAY

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

MR. HOLLOWAY was in an expansive mood, as he had just come from a good dinner and an ovation. Before an enthusiastic audience at the City club he had made his famous speech on "The Power of Thought."

He unbuttoned his vest and seated himself before his "workbench," as he liked to call his mahogany desk. "Now, if I can have an uninterrupted hour I can get some real work out of the way," he said.

Quiet thought was what accomplished things! From the day when as a young man, Holloway had stumbled across the formula for hardening the rubber in tires he had longed for time to think.

A workman entered and stood before Mr. Holloway's desk asking his advice. Mr. Holloway rose, cursing the interruption, and followed the workman into an adjoining room where the last finishing touches were being put on some alterations. The workman asked a question about the trim, which Mr. Holloway answered instantly.

He did not return at once to his office, but walked about the room, admiring the details. It was to be an absolutely quiet room.

"When this quiet room is finished I'll be able to get some real work done!" Mr. Holloway exclaimed, as he returned to his desk.

No sooner had he got squared away than the office manager, a thin, nervous fellow, in a black haircloth coat, bustled up. "Mr. Holloway, I'm at my wits' end," he fumed. "They're taking my storage space for factory materials, and I don't know where in the world I'm going to put the transfer correspondence." He spread a plan on his chief's desk.

Mr. Holloway scrutinized the plan, and like a flash, the solution came to him. He picked up the plan and boomed: "I'll let you know later. And in the meantime I'll give the matter my best thought."

The telephone rang and a City club secretary a thousand miles away asked if he would give his speech before their organization. "Yes, yes!" he shouted, and turned with a groan back to his plan.

A young man quietly entered the democratic office and stood before Mr. Holloway's desk. "I'm from Successful Men Magazine, and our readers want your ideas on the power of thought." Mr. Holloway gave his views, his voice trembling with the desire to throw the interrupting young man into the street.

A few days later the quiet room was finished. Every stick of furniture was in its place, and even the bronze reproduction of Rodin's "Thinker," reposed on the mantle. Mr. Holloway cleared the room of reporters and guests and announced he should first consider the problem of the office manager's transfer files.

Mr. Holloway sank back into one of the capacious padded leather chairs. This was the critical moment to which he had looked forward all through his business life. No more distractions; no more snap judgments, but from now on every decision firmly rooted in the deep thought that flourishes only in silence.

He spread the office manager's plan on the table, folded his hands across his unbuttoned vest and closed his eyes, the better to concentrate on the problem. He leaned his head against the leather chair back and relaxed every muscle.

The silence of the room hung over him like a blanket. He could hear the blood pounding in his head, while in his ears there rang a sharp, thin sound, like a distant locomotive whistle.

The ringing in his ears grew louder and became the whistle of a yacht—his yacht, bought with the extra profits made through the use of the silent room. He was standing on deck as the glorious boat plowed the blue waters of the Mediterranean sea. But what was the booming and that rattle of guns? A pirate ship in the distance! Its cannon was firing a shot a second, and its small arms were rattling an accompaniment. It was coming nearer, nearer. He shouted to the captain of his yacht. "Shoot! Why don't you shoot!"

Mr. Holloway awoke with a start. He snapped on the light and looked at his watch. After six! He had slept for over four hours!

He opened the great felt door and tiptoed across the dark, deserted office to where his hat was hanging. Glancing about, fearful lest he should meet one of his employees, he slunk shame-facedly to the elevator.

Next morning the office manager stood expectantly before Mr. Holloway's desk. "Did you decide about those cases of transfer correspondence?" he asked.

Mr. Holloway handed him a cigar and cleared his throat. "Don't be surprised," he warned with a nervous laugh.

After the two men had lighted their cigars Mr. Holloway ordered: "You can store the stuff in the new quiet room."

"Wha-wha-a-at?" stammered the office manager."

Mr. Holloway continued more confidently, now the first shock was over. "I've revised my slogan. From now on it's to be, 'Thought plus action.' You might have fifty copies struck off and distributed to all my department heads."

—and now we keep the servants in the walls

HERE'S a tip to home builders. No need to plan for "servants' quarters." Nowadays there's a servant that fits within the walls, a cheaper and better servant than ever before, a servant just as helpful as you will let it be. We call this marvel, electricity.

Electricity saves space, saves time, saves labor, saves money. It serves you over wires that run under your floors and through your walls. It is on the job day and night, as much or as little of it as you want.

Put this willing servant to work—but give him a chance to do his best work. See that the outlets and switches which go into your home are conveniently placed, so that you will have plenty of light and plenty of power, too, for your hardest tasks.

Talk this over with us. Let us show you how to hire this modern servant—and how to make him 100 per cent efficient.

Tell your contractor that you want sufficient convenience plugs in the next home you build. It isn't necessary to wait until you build a new home, for your electric contractor can install these outlets in your home at a small cost. Ask him to tell you—you will be surprised at the low cost.

LINCOLN LETTER CALLED GEM OF AMERICAN LITERATURE; WRITTEN TO MOTHER WHO GAVE 5 SONS

When President Woodrow Wilson had occasion to write a letter of sympathy to the mothers of the American marines who were kille din the Vera Cruz affair, he conferred with Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and both felt unequal to the occasion. By agreement secretary Daniels, acting with consent and in the name of the President, sent to each of these mothers a copy of Lincoln's letter. Woodrow was no meanmaster of the English tongue, and had a just estimate of his own ability to say what needed to be said and say it well. But he confessed his own inadequacy in the presence of Lincoln's letter to Mrs. Bixby," writes William E. Barton in Dearborn Independent. This letter is said to be lost. The original cannot be found although many copies are said to be in existence from the original. This letter is said to be the gem of American literature:

"Dear Madam: I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering to you consolation that may be found in the thanks of the republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom."

Mrs. W. O. Cone

" A beautiful star has set, another saint gone home to Glory."

Mrs. W. O. Cone departed this life at her home near Minerva, Texas, January 27, 1926. She was born in Hillsborough, Union County, Arkansas, September 22, 1847. When a child she moved with her parents to old Washington, Burleson County, Texas. Later the family came to Milam County, settling on Little River in the early pioneer days. She was the daughter of the late John L. and Ann Watts Winston who gave the site for the present location of the family cemetery that now bears their name, and it was in this family burial ground that her remains were laid to rest beside the body of her beloved companion who had preceeded her to life's other shore nearly seven years.

It was at the old Winston home on Little River that Mis Virginia Winston, subject of this sketch, united in marriage with W. O. Cone on December 18, 1870. There were born unto this devoted couple fourteen children, four of whom died in early childhood, and the other ten, Mrs. Robert Isaacs of Georgetown, Mrs. N. M. Bullock and Miss Johnnie Cone of Rockdale, Mrs. J. C. Wallace, Miss Jennie Cone, B. F., Leonard, Bonner, S. F., and Ryan Cone, all of whom reside in and near Minerva, together with an only sister, Mrs. S. B. Ford of Rockdale, and a host of relatives and friends still survive to mourn the loss of their loved one.

Mrs. W. O. Cone and husband, both now deceased, joined the original M. E. Church which was organized at Sanders School house in pioneer days of the county, both being baptised on the same day and uniting with the church in their youthful days. In their early married life they erected a family altar, rearing their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. They were both ofttimes official members of the church and remained consistent members thereof until they were gathered unto the Church Eternal.

If it were possible to distinguish one trait of character from another, the outstanding virtue would be the love of home and children. Hers was an exemplary life, the fruition of which flowered most beautifully in the pleasures of home and the affectionate companionship of one another. Being a large family they were a little world to themselves, and after the evening shadows dropped her soft mantle over all it was the custom of this family to gather around the old hearthstone in wise counsel or in glad abandonment to mirth and song which bespoke that rare comradeship of a happy united family.

"Home is not just four square walls,
Through with pictures hung and gilded,
Home is where affection calls,
Filled with shrines the heart hath builded."

As one by one the children answered the call of life and went forth into the world to establish places and homes for themselves, there remained with the mother one daughter, who was the stay and comfort of her declining years. The comradeship of this mother and daughter was an inspiration to all who knew them, and whom to know it was to love. The joy of each was in the companionship of the other. And to this dear one left behind we say such a companionship fostered on earth had its inception in heaven, where one awaits to greet the other at the end of earth's journey. She but goes to prepare a place for all of you, that where she is there you may be also, and whither she goes you know, and the way you know. She would not have her dear ones grieve for her, but instead would have us remember that she has gone unto the Father that her joy might be full. "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Even her passing hour portrays the life she led, the spiritual foundation she sought to give her children. She was reviewing the 22nd chapter of Proverbs wherein we find, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old he will not depart from it" when her spirit took its flight. It had been her wish to go thus, so that, too, came to pass.

The funeral services were conducted at the M. E. Church of Minerva, and began with the singing of "Nearer My God To Thee" by a few close friends and relatives, followed by other songs and an address over the bier by her pastor, Rev. J. R .Richey, assisted by Rev. C. F. Smith of Rockdale, formerly presiding elder of the Minerva circuit, both of whom spoke lovingly of the beautiful character of the deceased and her gracious Christian influence in the home, and offered words of comfort to the grief stricken loved ones and sorrowing friends. At special request the following beautiful solo, a favorite of the deceased, was rendered by her niece, Miss Lucile Ford of Sherman.

"There's a land beyond the river
That we call the sweet forever,
And we only reach that shore by faith's decree.
One by one we'll gain the portals,
There to dwell with the immortals,
When they ring the golden bells for you and me.

"Don't you hear the bells now ringing?
Don't you hear the angels singing?
'Tis the glory hailelujah jubilee
In that far off sweet forever,
Just beyond the shining river
Where they ring the golden bells for you and me.

"When our days shall know their number,
When in death we sweetly slumber,
When the King commands the spirit to be free,
Never more with anguish laden
We shall reach that lovely aiden
When they ring the golden bells for you and me."

SETTLING DOWN AFTER WAR

It has always happened that war unsettles nations, and causes disturbances for years in succession.

War takes young men out of their ordinary ocupations and habits and unsettles many of them. It is especially that whe nthe war is over, all these fellows will return to their former locations and old occupations, but many of them will not do so. They have had a touch of excitement and wider experience, and the pursuits that formerly satisfied them do not do so any longer.

After the Civil War, the undeveloped condition of the country created a kind of normal outlet for the desire for new experience. Young men who dislike to settle down in their former homes, could migrate to the then unsettled portions of the west, and the chance to develop the new country gave them plenty of outlet. If they wished adventure, they could find all they wanted of it.

After the World War, there was not so much opening for those desiring adventure of new things. The opportunity to develop new country does not eist to any such etent. It takes a good good deal of capital to buy farms to engage in business.

Perhaps this condition is one reason why there has been a good deal of restlessness since the war. Young men who wanted adventure and something new did not seem to find outlet for that desire. Perhaps this explains why many have gone in for crime and various forms of lawlessness. this spirit of course will wear off in time, and people are gradually learning that excitement and adventure are not so desirable as earnest work and patient endeavor. The tendency of war to unsettle many young men and turn them away from ocupations in which they were gradually learning to make themselves useful, is one phase of the loss which it creates.

PASSING OF THE TRUANT

The festive truant is not so much of a factor in the boy world as he used to be. Formerly we used to hear much of the idle and wandering boys who would quit school on many fine days and wander off for whatever sport was in vogue. But the ideas of the people as to school attendance are getting stricter. They pay taxes to have the children taught, and they know they can't get their money's worth if the pupils are roaming all over creation.

School officers are following up absent children more persistently, and finding out why they don't show up and take the dose of culture which the community insists upon their swallowing.

Probably children are less inclined to play truant than formerly. The school work is more interesting. Many of the type of boys who formerly skipped school to engage in sports, are likely to realize that their best hold is to stick to their school and work into one of the athletic teams.

The worst offenders are often parents rather than children. In the country districts it is claimed that many farmers keep their children out when there is some work that they want done. Thereby they may save hiring labor, but they pay a high price for it when they allow breaks to occur in the children's schooling.

Children simply can't keep up if they are allowed to stay out without good cause. They fall behind their classes, and fail to learn things essential to their further progress. They get the idea that school work is not important, which may dull their sense of ambition. Every family in Cameron should be urged to send its children to school with absolute regularity, except as sickness may interfere.

VALENTINE'S DAY

Saint Valentine's day is remembered by many even in these busy times, and people exchange graceful messages and polite compliments, and children send pretty cards with sentiments of young friendship. But it was not always taken so lightly.

Some can recall when people of quite youthful age used to send very intense and lovelorn messages on this occasion, and were extremely anxious to know how they would be received. Young people became infatuated with premature love affairs somewhat early then, and sending valentines was a favorite way of expressing that sentiment.

People laugh at premature love affairs now, and suggest that these young people would better think of so serious a subject until they are ready to take on the responsibilities of marriage. And yet in spite of all such suggestions, people continue to be stung by the little god Cupid, not merely on Valentine's day but all the year, and marriages are constantly taking place in the most heedless way.

We used to hear a great deal about people who were made forever unhappy by disappointment in love affairs, they would pass through the world with a cloud over their spirits, and swear eternal celibacy if they could not have the one they wanted. Today they decide to cheer up, and new friendships are likely to come to them that will be quite as rewarding as the one that failed to develop into something more.

The love that makes a happy marriage is not the intense longing of love at first sight, but a deep and permanent affection that gradually grows up between people who have united their efforts for common ends. On such Saint Valentine may well smile, while those that conceive violent fancies for people without knowing much about them take too many chances to please his sound common sense.

BUY IT AT HOME

Did you ever stop to think that perhaps if you had tried at home to buy that dress, that suit, or that piece of machinery, you could have got something just as good as you did by going far out of town or using a catalogue—and at just as low a price?

Too many times we feel that our own local merchants do not have quite the stock that we would wish to select from or that they cannot meet the price offered by the larger stores of neighboring cities. Usually this supposition is wrong, because the local merchant will naturally have less overhead, lower rents, and less salary expense. If you will consult him, the chances are he will stock his store with the kind of things you want.

Before we go out of town from now on, let's give the local merchant a chance, at least. It won't take long to find that you can soon buy just what you need and you will, in turn, know that you have helped to make your town more progressive and yourself more loyal.

ROOMY TOWNS

The future of many towns depends to some extent whether they give the impression of being roomy towns or not. In years past many of the older towns were planned in a crowded way. Although such places usually had unlimited space to build on, yet for some unexplained reason they started in by putting their homes very close together, giving an impression of congestion when there was no need for the same.

In recent years real estate owners in many localities have kept up the same impression, by cutting up land into too small lots at rather low prices, so the buyers felt they were a good bargain. But many of these developments became too crowded when dwellings were erected on them, thus creating an unfavorable impression.

It is a fine thing when new tracts of land are so planned that there is ample room around houses. That encourages owners to take pride in their land and make it beautiful.

THE CLEAN TOWN

In former years there were many handsome towns that were indifferent about keeping cleaned up. If someone threw a piece of waste paper down into the grass by the side of the street, it might stay there all summer. Such towns would be so strewed with litter as to spoil the effect created by well kept buildings and grounds.

People should be trained not to throw litter in the streets. A constant propaganda ought to be carried on, through schools, clubs, newspapers, etc, for this purpose. Second, assuming that there always will be some who are so careless or ignorant that they will keep on tiuns distributing this litter, some regular work of street cleaning must be done. It costs a little money, but not so much as to allow a town to acquire a disorderly look.

LET'S CUT DOWN THE ACREAGE

If the cotton crop of the United States can be reduced next year, it means more profit to the farmer, for it means that he can get a better price for his product. During the year just past, Texas farmers planted 18,000,000 acres in cotton and assuming an average of 1-3 a bale to the acre, it means 6,000,000 bales produced on Texas soil. This is about one half of the amount of cotton which should be produced in the nation during one season. If Texas would bring down her production to about 4,000,000 bales and the farmers of the South would cut down their acreage to about two-thirds of what it was last year, it would mean more money for all.

The acreage that is not used can be made into pastures, and grains and other foodstuffs can be raised and better cotton can be produced with more pounds to the acre.

Too large a crop for the nation means lower prices while diversification and crop rotation mean that the farmer's dollar will increase in value all the time.

LINCOLN, THE MAN OF THE PEOPLE

When the Norn Mother saw the Whirlwind Hour
Greatening and darkening as it hurried on,
She left the Heaven of Heroes and came down
To make a man to meet the mortal need.
She took the tried clay of the common road—
Clay warm yet with the genial heart of Earth,
Dasht through it all a strain of prophecy,
Tempered the heap with a thrill of human tears,
Then mixt a laughter with the serious stuff.
Into the shape she breathed the flame to light
That tender, tragic, ever-changing face:
And laid on him a sense of Mystic Powers,
Moving—all husts—behind the mortal veil.
Here was a man to hold against the world,
A man to watch the mountains and the sea.

The color of the ground was in him, the red earth;
The smack and tang of elemental things;
The rectitude and patience of the cliff;
The good-will of the rain that loves all leaves
The friendly welcome of the wayside well;
The courage of the bird that dares the sea;
The gladness of the wind that shakes the corn;
The pity of the snow that hides all scars;
The secrecy of streams that make their way
Under the mountain to the rifted rock;
The tolerance and equity of light
That gives as freely to the shrinking flower
As to the great oak flaring to the wind—
To the grave's low hill as to the Matterhorn
That shoulders out the sky. Sprung from the west,
He drank the valorous youth of the new world.
The strength of virgin forests braced his mind,
The hush of spacious prairies stilled his soul.
His words were oaks in acorns; and his thoughts
Were roots that firmly gript the granite truth.

Up from log cabin to the Capitol,
One fire was on his spirit, one resolve—
To send the keen ax to the root of wrong,
Clearing a free way for the feet of God,
The eyes of conscience testing every stroke,
To make his deed the measure of a man.
He built the rail-pile as he built the State,
Pouring his splendid strength through every blow:
The grip that swung the ax in Illinois
Was on the pen that set a people free.

So came the Captain with the mighty heart:
And when the judgement thunders split the house,
Wrenching the rafters from their ancient rest,
We held the ridgepole up, and spikt again
The rafters of the Home. He held his place—
Held the long purpose like a growing tree—
Held on through blame and faltered not a praise.
And when he fell in whirlwind, he went down
As when a lordly cedar, green with boughs,
Goes down with a great shout upon the hills,
And leaves a lonesome place against the sky.

—EDWIN MARKHAM.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON EASY MONEY

"An awfully interesting man came to see me today, Aunt Emmy. He had a list of stocks and bonds that look very favorable to me. Take this,' said Helen, handing an alluring looking folder to Aunt Emmy. "This stock is pretty good. The man said it would be quoted at 20 on the exchange a month after it is put out. I can buy shares now at two dollars so I would make eighteen dollars for every two dollars I invest and all inside of four weeks." Helen paused for breath while Aunt Emmy looked at the folder.

"If I were to buy those White Leghorn chickens of yours," remarked Aunt Emmy, "would you promise me their eggs will sell for one dollar and a half a dozen a month from now?"

"Of course not, Aunty," laughed Helen. "The price of eggs depends entirely on the supply and demand in the market."

"Well, how about stocks? Why can this man promise you this stock will be selling for twenty dollars a month from now?"

"Well, I don't know exactly, but the listings on the stock exchange are different, aren't they?"

"The prices of stocks quoted on the stock exchange are influenced by supply and demand like the prices of eggs. No one can honestly guarantee the future price of any stock. A promoter who urges you to buy stock on any such guarantee is misinforming you. A stock salesman you could trust, would never make such a statement. If you are going to listen to such talk you'd better put your money in the savings bank."

"But I wouldn't make so much on it!" objected Helen.

"Big profits mean big risks, and you cannot afford to take risks," said Aunt Emmy. "The house that gets out this booklet is unknown to you. Why don't you find out who you are dealing with?"

"How can I find out about the thousands of stock houses in the United States?"

"Well," said Aunt Emmy, "if you insist on considering making investments, you ought to at least take the trouble to go to your bank and find out about the people you are dealing with."

"I didn't know banks would bother with anything but actual banking," Helen said.

"They are glad to," Aunt Emmy said. "The more people that save and invest money wisely the better it is for the banks."—A. B. Aymes.

RESTRICTING LOANS ON UNECONOMIC FARMING

Bankers in many of the rural sections of the country are realizing as never before that they cannot afford to loan money for the conduct of farming enterprises where the odds are against that enterprise ever becoming a success. The risk is too great, and what is more it is doing the borrower an injury to encourage him in an unwarranted venture.

Some farmers may resent the idea of being questioned in regard to the use they expect to make of borrowed money. A false idea of their independence may lead them to feel that they can do as they please and follow any system of farming they desire; that it is nobody else's business whether that system is economic or not.

Experiences in certain sections during the past few years demonstrate the folly of such a position. The banker is loaning other people's money and he is duty bound to safeguard what has been entrusted to him. Further, the law holds him responsible. With this obligation resting on his shoulders he has a right to select his customers. If he is convinced that a one-crop system or any other particular type of farming is unsound and is likely to be uneconomic, he is doing an injustice to the borrower as well as the depositor to loan the farmer the money.

Best results will accrue when both the lender and the borrower recognize that they are entering into a partnership and if the advantages and the dangers are frankly and carefully discussed the possibilities of success are greatly enhanced.—Banker-Farmer.

A Few Good "Don'ts"

Don't buy securities that are handled by irresponsible persons or unknown firms.

Don't buy mortgage notes on distant property.

Don't buy stock in new enterprises.

Don't try to work the stock market. If the public were to win, professional operators would soon shut up shop and quit.

Don't buy stock in mines you know nothing about. Many mines are holes where fools dump their money.

Don't buy oil stock.

Don't buy stock in new invention schemes.

Don't buy real estate unless you have seen it. It may be a swamp.

Don't buy from one who says, "Invest now or it will be too late."

Don't buy from one who says, "The price will soon be raised."

Don't buy from one who offers you a discount for cash.

Don't buy anything on "tips."

Have nothing to do with the "bucket shop."

Don't speculate. A rich man can afford to, but you can't.

A splendid rule is, before you buy a security take it to a conservative and disinterested banker and ask him how much he will lend on it alone as security.—Banker-Farmer.

BACK HURT BAD

Lady Had Severe Pains in Back and Got Very Weak.

"I think very highly of Cardui for I have had great benefit from its use," says Mrs. Cora Nicholson, of Ware Shoals, S. C.

"I was in bed quite a while. It looked like my strength would not come back, and I suffered with severe pains in my back whenever I would try to get up. Sometimes I would scream out, my back hurt me so bad.

"My husband got me some Cardui and I took two bottles. Very shortly after I began to take it I could notice I felt better. I began to get stronger. My appetite was improving and I could see that I was much better.

"After I had finished the second bottle I was able to be up and do all my own housework, so of course I think Cardui is fine. It is the best tonic for women that I know anything about, and I am glad to recommend it. Not long ago I told a lady friend of mine about it, and it did her as much good as it has done for me."

CONFEDERATE WHO GUARDED CAMERON BEFORE REPUBLIC DAYS HONORED AT BELL COUNTY PIONEER GATHERING

Belton, Feb. 7.—As Bell County's pioneers of 70 years and up gather today at Baylor College to honor John Wesley Ray on his one-hundredth birthday, it is recalled that the centenarian was with Ross' Texas rangers guarding the town of Cameron when its first lot sale was held.

Cameron was established before George Barnard pushed foolhardily to within a few miles of the Haucos' village and gave Trading House creek its name. George Barnards old log trading house has long since rotted away, and after it has gone later buildings which were the beginnings of Waco. But John Wesley Ray, who saw the light eighteen years before Barnard's trading house, still treads the earth, and gives his friends hope that he will continue on for years to come though he carries the scars of two wounds received for the "lost cause".

Until last summer he could walk over a large farm with no special fatigue. An attack of rheumatism a few months ago has cut down his ranging limits, and he is now able to walk about only with a steady support. But his hearing and eyesight are good, and teh dental professions would have hard pickings if they depended on the likes of John Wesley Ray, whose hundredth birthday finds him with a mouthful of his own personally grown variety.

The house which shelters the veteran today is of cottonwood frame and boxing, cut from the banks of the creek at Three Forks in 1879. It is ceiled and weatherboarded with planks cut later with the first circular saw in this section, which Mr. Ray put in. Mr. Ray's father built the first house at Thrall.

Thirty children and grown folk today call Mr. Ray "great-grandfather" and one two year old boy in San Fransisco has the right to say "great-great-grandfather." These descendants are scattered over six states.

Mr. Ray was born in Waynesboro, Tenn., Feb. 8, 1826. He came with his parents to Texas at the age of 13 years, the family settling in what is known as the Milano district with its county seat at Nashville on the Brazos. Later the family moved to a home on the San Gabriel river near where Thrall is now located.

BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

A SCIENTIST AND RELIGION

(Baptist Standard)

Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, who is an unquestioned authority on horticulture, recently declared himself to be an infidel. He added, "I am a doubter, a questioner, a skeptic. When it can be proved to me that there is immortality, that there is resurrection beyond the gates of death, then will I believe. Until then, No."

Such a statement by a famous horticulturist or eminent scientist who is not a Christian has the same weight no more, as the opinion of any other man not a Christian; for the reason that the truths of the Christian religion are spiritually, not materially, discerned. He is not the only distinguished man in the realm of science who has presumed to speak with as much assurance on questions of religious faith, with which he has little acquaintance, as on various phases of plant life.

Mr. Burbank's view illustrates Paul's statement that "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him; and he cannot know them because they are spiritually judged." Nicodemus coming to Christ with an inquiry concerning the Kingdom of God was inclined at first to question spiritual truths, because he could not discern them, but Jesus revealed to him his own ignorance concerning material things. He could not tell whence the wind cometh or whither it goeth. He could not believe earthly things; how could he believe heavenly things?

In assuming the attitude of an agnostic, in refusing to believe anything for which he did not have the proof, Mr. Burbank has taken the position the inconsistency of which is quite apparent. We would say to him as did Philip to Nathaniel, "Come and see." Put Christ to the test. Mr. Burbank would have never accomplished anything in the development of plants if at the beginning of his experience he had been unwilling to take a step on faith. While in the material realm he advanced the countless adventures, it is not fair to reject the message of Christ without a demonstration. Let him try Christ before he refuses His gospel. Let him sincerely and earnestly acept the challenge of Him who said, "For this is the will of my Father, that everyone that beholdeth the Son, and believeth on him, should have eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day." Mr. Burbank would have never accomplished anything in horticulture if he had never touched a flower. He will never have any assurance concerning spiritual truths until he takes Christ at His word and tests his promises. Let him believe on Christ; let him will to do His will and he shall know of the teaching whether it is of God. Let him have in his own heart an experience of grace, not of theory, and he will be just as sure that Christ lives, and of the resurrection, as he is of achievements of horticulture.

The one answer to any man who questions the vital experiences of the hearts of men until he himself has as earnestly tested out the promises of God as he has theories in the physical world.

believer is, "Come and see." No man, certainly no scientist, who, of all men, believes in demonstrations, should prejudge the work of God in the

The beautiful bride is the youngest daughter of Dr. J. E. May and a sister of Mrs. C. E. Gaston. She wore a modish suit of brown with becoming hat and harmonizing accessories. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ford left by motor for a bridal trip to Waco. Upon their return they will begin housekeeping in Gaston apartments.

PARTY FOR "THE BUILDERS"

A Valentine 42 party for members of her Sunday school class was the compliment of the class president, Mrs. J. S. Bradford to members of her class at her home on Tuesday evening. The Valentine motif was used in all decorative details and in accessories for the games. Brick ice cream featuring red hearts and angel cake squares were used for the refreshment course.

The following enjoyed the games at the valentine party: Mr. and Mrs. Dow Eplen, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Garner, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Burke, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Walters, Mr. and Mrs. James Neinast, Mr. and Mrs. Auburn Duncum, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kuhn, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Lovick, Misses Annie Wooley, Ezma Harris, Grace Eplen and Mr. Albert Collins.

Mrs. Earl Evers was hostess on Saturday at a bridge luncheon of unusual charm and distinction which was planned as a special courtesy to her house guest, Mrs. Joe Denson of Cameron. The coming of spring was heralded in the charming theme which was so cleverly carried out in all the pretty details of the affair, gold and green were expressed in the floral decorations of sweet peas and maidenhair fern, and these dainty colors were featured throughout the hospitality. At one o'clock a delicious two course luncheon was served on trays which were most effectively arranged to stress the chosen theme. The places for the nine tables of guests were marked by artistic cards which served as place markers as well as tally cards for the games that followed the luncheon. Gracing the center of each tray was a dainty rose-colored basket of sweet peas and fern, the handle of which wrapped in vari-hued maline stimulated a rainbow. Leading from the base of the basket to each plate were streamers of the rainbow colored tulle, producing a very dainty effect. At a given time these were drawn revealing the "pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow", a tiny golden bag of rice to which were attached cards bearing the following announcement: W. Scott Robinson and Miss Tennie Mae Bass, April 7, 1926. The secret thus charmingly revealed came as a genuine surprise to the guests assembled and proved the interesting feature of the afternoon. Following the luncheon the tables were cleared for bridge, and several delightful hours were passed at the interesting pastime. At the close of the games a lovely picture was given for success, and the honor guests, Mrs. Denson and Miss Bass, were presented dainty gifts of Madeira linen. Sharing the pleasures of the occasion with the Honorees were the following guests: Mesdames N. B. Walker of Beeville, James Bass and Charles Rowland of Yoakum, J. L. Bass, Marvin Duckworth, W. W. Sale, Louis Schoore, Myron Bass, Carroll Harvill of Dallas, J. P. Moore, H. S. Browneli, Geneva Cole, Theo Ruess, Jack Howerton, Julius Haak, A. W. Bourke, Lewis Otts, R. S. McWilliams, J. S. Mr. Copeland, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart motored to Dallas for a honeymoon trip, returning to Cameron on Monday afternoon. They are pleasantly domiciled with Mrs. India Stidham. The charming bride has made a large circle of friends during her stay of five seasons in the millinery department of Cheeves Bros.

The groom has for three years held a responsible position with the grocery firm of his brother-in-law, C. N. Green, and his friends are as numerous as his acquaintances. The Herald extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Stewart.

All members of the choir and the pastor and his wife appeared in costumes that might be vividly described as "A scream". Each costume was unique, but the twins, Mrs. Will Stafford and Lucile Dickard attracted so much attention that they deserve special mention even though Mrs. R. P. Jeter was awarded the prize for the tackiest costume by the judges. Mr. C. S. Peyton official announcer in a costume of his own contrivance and manufacture was unique beyond words and in his own immutable way introduced in unmistakable terms the choir members who appeared on the stage arranged as for old time school exhibition to give the following program:

JOHN CHARLES

Beloved by many friends and sincerely mourned by his circle of relatives Mr. John Charles passed away at his home near Tracy on Wednesday after a lingering illness, which he bore with great patience and fortitude.

Mr. Charles was an honored citizen of his community where he had made his home since 1879. He was of English birth but was a patriotic Texan and an American by choice. He was born January 17, 1856 in Birmingham, England. He was a prominent farmer of the Track community and his farm was the model in the community. His home was the seat of hospitality, and a place where visitors loved to linger. His wife was Miss Mary Schulz and they were married on November 5, 1891 and have lived in the same house since their marriage. Mr. Charles is survived by his wife and three sons, Messrs Marvin, Bernice and Otis Charles.

Rev. Mr. Black and Rev. Mr. Marshall of the Methodist church will have charge of the funeral ceremonies at the Track church on Thursday afternoon with interment at Lebanon Cemetery.

Mr. Charles was a faithful and consistent member of the Methodist church and his consecrated christian life was a beacon light in his services and was ever ready to respond to the call of duty in the services of his church and had held many offices of trust and honor in his denomination. The twenty third Psalm is a fitting scripture to express the trusting faith exemplified in the life of this noble christian man.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Bright Wings of Romance

By RALPH D. PAINE

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

TIME had been very cruel to Harriet Brent. To some women the years come like an Indian summer.

Harriet Brent lived alone in an old house, which also had come to have an aspect unlovely and forlorn. Foursquare to the road it stood, its fields bounded by stone walls heaped together by the tenacious toil of New England pioneers.

A house that still braved the weather staunchly, it had sheltered many children and known many joys and sorrows. This its broad roof conveyed to the passer-by. For one elderly woman to dwell alone in it was like sitting by the dead ashes of a hearthstone.

Harriet Brent was not unhappy. In her heart, which seemed untenanted by warm emotions, there lived unquenched one divine spark of the true romance. Her faded eyes could soften in wistful reverie.

The Harriet Brent of those many, many years gone by had been a sensitive, slender girl of a certain flower-like, fleeting beauty. Delicate, they had called her. A shy girl, moving in misty day-dreams which she had been reluctant to reveal.

Eighteen she was when the lad had come from a larger town for a brief visit with cousins on a nearby farm. So brief—only a week. He had made love to her, with an ardor boyish and turbulent. Unashamed, she had returned his kisses.

Careless, splendid, debonair, swearing he loved her forever and ever, he had passed on and forgotten her.

Harriet Brent did not forget him. Life is sometimes that way. The spirit of romance had once, only once, brushed her with its bright wings. Time healed the poignant sorrow. It came to be that she was glad to bear the scar. Even in these somber latter years she could sit and thank God that she had known love and kisses and aching rapture.

One day this harsh-featured, unsmiling spinster went out to feed the hens. She had clapped on a battered haymaker's straw hat. A shawl was thrown over her faded shirt-waist. The old skirt had been chopped off to make it easier to do the chores. The rubber boots were handy because there was mud in the hen yard.

The empty pan in her hand, Harriet Brent stood staring at a very large and glittering automobile which had halted in front of the house. The chauffeur was studying a weather-beaten guide-board on a post. A handsome woman, ruddy, dignified, spoke to the gentleman beside her. He left the car and walked to the gate of Harriet Brent's dooryard. She came clumping from the barn path to meet him.

"Is this the road to Warechester, you please?"

"Yes, take the first road to the right after you climb the hill beyond the watering-trough."

"Thank you, and may my man have a pail of water to fill his radiator? If you will be good enough to show him where the well is—"

"I'll fetch you a pail," grimly spoke Harriet Brent. She lingered a moment to survey this vigorous, genial stranger with the close-cropped, grizzled moustache, the keen eyes, the air of substantial importance. Time had not been cruel to him. Life had been gracious nor had it obliterated that dominating quality which had made him victorious in boyhood.

Yes, Harriet Brent knew him as soon as they stood face to face, but the expression of her worn features was unchanged. She went into the shed and returned with a pail. The man who had come out of the past seemed in no haste to rejoin his wife in the car nor did he hear her when she called to him. He was gazing at the shabby old house and at the apple orchard beyond. His demeanor was curiously abstracted. His eyes were grave but his smile had a boyish sweetness as he said:

"This fine old place has run down. Too bad. I remember it years ago. A family named Brent lived here then. Do you know what became of them?"

"Dead and gone," replied Harriet. "You can see the stones in the little burying ground at the edge of the orchard.

"Yes, it was a long time ago. There was a daughter, a very lovely girl. I met her one summer, when I was a boy. Married, I suppose, and a grandmother by now?"

"She has gone, too, so I've heard say," steadily answered Harriet in a low voice. Her hand pulled the edges of the shawl together and remained there to rest on her heart. "Yes, the girl you used to know has gone from here."

His wife spoke impatiently. He turned with a start. Presently the car rolled away from the house by the road. He glanced back, more than once. From behind the ancient lilac bush, Harriet Brent watched the car vanish. Then she clasped her hands and murmered, in prayer:

"Oh, thank God he didn't know me. But he remembered—and he loved to remember. He was loving the girl that has gone. I didn't expect anything could ever make me so happy."

She went into the house and kindled a blaze in the huge fireplace of the sitting-room. By its glow she sat with folded hands, while the red coals covered the dead ashes. Her face was no longer harsh and unlovely. The bright wings of romance had brushed it.

They Prayed for Peace

By BERTHA R. McDONALD

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS all over.

Swallowed up in one corner of the huge davenport she sat, a pathetic little figure, gazing unseeingly into the grate fire, gripping in her hand the mute evidence which decreed that she need never admit him to her home again. At the same time, every fiber of her being was crying out for him, yearning for him, needing him.

And yet, how could any woman with an atom of pride or self-respect have gone on with things as they were? One could forgive brutality, nonsupport, immorality, any of these things and try to go on, if one loved, but in a case like theirs, where there really was nothing tangible—

The lawyers had named it incompatibility and he had not repudiated the claim.

"But how can I ever live without him?" she moaned aloud, slipping to her knees beside the couch, burying her head among the pillows. "Was I too hasty? Is there some other thing I might have tried? Oh, God," raising her wet eyes prayerfully, "flash the light of Your wisdom upon my pathway and guide me to peace—peace—peace—"

"Go 'way! Wanna Daddy! Never did have 'nough Daddy!"

The childish wail, floating down to her from somewhere above, interrupted her tearful supplication, turning the knife in her heart with a sickening twinge.

His son! His son and hers, who never had had enough daddy! And now, neither of them was even to hear his voice.

The next moment there penetrated through the stillness of the drawing room, unlighted except for the glow from the fire, the sound of a key in the latch, the gentle opening and closing of a door, followed by footsteps coming along the hall. A brand from the fire blazed up and disclosed to the woman upon her knees, the outline of a familiar figure standing in the curtained archway between the hall and the drawing room; a figure bowed as though in mental anguish, unmindful of time or surrounding.

Quietly, on her knees, she slipped along the edge of the davenport, losing herself among the shadows at the end, watching breathlessly, waiting, for what, she could not have told.

Presently the figure moved on toward the grate and stood, apparently absorbed in something pictured to him in the flickering fire. The butler, entering with wood for the fire, seemed to lift him from the apathy into which he had fallen.

"Are—are you stopping for the night, sir?" the surprised butler asked jerkily.

"No—it—it's only another of my usual mistakes. Forget about being barred—still have my key—used it from force of habit—that's all. I—I'll go in a moment."

"It's quite all right, sir," the servant returned with suppressed excitement. "It's a cold night—I've brought wood—you—you'd better get warm, sir."

Thrusting a log upon the glowing coals, the butler brushed his sleeve coat carefully, glancing furtively meanwhile at the preoccupied man who had so recently been deposed as his master and hurried from the room.

For one long moment the man stood there motionless, then dropped to his knees before the couch in the same spot where but a little while before another suppliant had begged for peace.

"Oh, God," he prayed aloud, his head upon the couch, his hands folded above it, "show me the way! Tell me that I have done right to let them go out of my life forever, still loving them as I do! What is the meaning of it all? What is this hard, cruel thing that stalked like a death-dealing scourge through my home and drove my happiness out? Oh, for peace—peace—peace!"

To the stricken woman crouching on the floor among the shadows there suddenly appeared a great light. Creeping to the man's side she laid her tear-wet face against his folded hands and sobbed aloud.

"My dear—my dear!" The smothered gasps reached the man's ear, penetrating his benumbed consciousness like a ray of silvery moonlight. "I did it for you," the woman went on. "I thought we, the boy and I, the home, everything, annoyed you—bored you. I thought you longed for freedom and I—I only wanted you to have what was necessary to make you happy!"

Slowly unfolding his hands he took her face between his palms and drew it forward to his breast.

The last smoldering spark in the fire died out. The glowing tapestry of the morning spread like a promise in the dull gray of the sky. Still the man and woman sat there, facts shifting and changing ground, the real becoming a shadow, the shadow becoming truth, like things in a flowing mist, until the lamp of their mutual love shone through the fog, lighting the future with a blaze of faith and hope.

And then floating down to them from somewhere above, setting the strings of their hearts vibrating to a sublime harmony, there came the poignant cry:

"Never did have 'nough daddy!"

WHO TIED THE HAWK?

Mr. J. W. Pitts of Gause reports a rather unusual incident that was observed on his place near Gause this week. Thorny Timmons was passing by the Pitts place and saw a large hawk with a chicken; he borrowed Mr. Pitt's gun and killed the hawk. On inspection they found that the hawk's feet had been tied with bailing wire. A part of the wire was still found on the hawk. Mr. Pitts is curious to know who the hawk belongs to.

Great Stunt for Stunt Nite.

As Friday night of this week is stunt night, some have proposed this play as one of the stunts:

A FOUL PLAY

CHARACTERS:

Pyorrhea (a girl who has brought more men to their knees than a broken axle on a Ford.)

Davenport (he was an overstuffed model.)

Scene (very obscene.)

He: "Darling (he swallowed his Adams apple so many times his neck felt like an orchard) darling, I—er—I want to ask you something. All the time I was in Europe I thought of the night when I would return—and ask you this—ah—vital question, and I must have your answer tonight."

She: "Oh, my dear, you know I have loved you ever since you used to play tackle on the all-necking eleven—what question, honey?"

He (falteringly): "Did they ever find Sally?"

(They remove the remains with a vacuum cleaner.)

CURTAIN

Doris Davis: "Why don't you answer me?"

"Dumb" Childress: "I did shake my head."

Doris: "Well, I couldn't hear it rattle clear over here."

Leo: "Watch out, yap! Don't strike a match on the gas tank!"

Frank: "It's all right. This is a safety match."

Smoke rolled to the high heavens, roaring flames leaped and twisted from the top of the doomed building. The police struggled with the gathering crowd, and the gallant firemen battled in vain with the big tenement fire.

Suddenly a tall, emaciated man broke through the fire lines and strode rapidly into the burning building, unprotected by gas mask or rubber coat. Immediately the flames died down, the smoke rolled away and the fire was out. The gaunt stranger strolled peacefully out of the smouldering building with a satisfied look on his face.

"Who are you, anyhow?" asked one of the crowd.

"I'm the retired fire-eater from Barnum & Bailey, and that's the first square meal I've had for years"

The new cigar known as the Moonshine Crook has created much excitement in town. The other day Reed Rogers went into the Palace of Sweets and called for a Moonshine Crook. He got it and as he put it in his mouth he noticed on a William Penn cigar box this sign, "Five Cents Straight." He turned to the soda dispenser and asked, "If those cigars sell for five cents straight, what do these crooked ones sell for"

Rockdale-Cameron Game.

Friday afternoon immediately following the Sharpe-Cameron game of the boys' basketball tournament, the Rockdale girls and the Cameron Yoemenettes played. Mr. Boggus, who was refereeing for the tournament, officiated.

The Rockdale girls held Cameron fast and at the end of the first half the score was 8 to 9 in Rockdale's favor. However, the last half the Yoemenettes seemed to receive some unexpected inspiration, for they ran their score up to 22, the game closing with a score of 14-22 in the Yoemenettes' favor.

This was Rockdale's return game, Cameron having defeated Rockdale a few weeks previously.

The Yoemenettes always enjoy playing their neighbors and will be expecting Rockdale here on the 5th and 6th of March.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON HOW TO LEAVE AN ESTATE

"Do you know, Aunty," said Helen, as she accepted a cup of tea from Aunt Emmy, "I feel terribly sorry for Mrs. Strong."

"Yes," agreed Aunt Emmy, "it will be hard for her. She is such a dependent, helpless, little thing."

"Oh, I don't mean that," interrupted Helen. "Her feelings are so hurt because, as she says, her husband publicly insulted her by not making her executrix and trustee of his estate."

"Good gracious, child, did she say that!" exclaimed Aunt Emmy, setting her cup down with a bang.

"Yes, she did, Aunty," said Helen, enjoying the sensation she had made and determined to make the most of it, "and I'm sure I agree with her. The idea of that old man appointing a trust company to look after Mrs. Strong's money. It isn't as though there wasn't plenty of it. The Strongs are the richest people in town, I guess."

"Well, for mercy's sakes!" cried Aunt Emmy, disgust in every syllable, "if it don't beat all! You are as big a fool as she is then!"

"What do you mean, Aunt Emmy?" asked Helen with dignity. "I think it nothing short of disgraceful for a man to show that he has no confidence in his wife by putting his money in strangers' hands to be doled out to her as they see fit."

"You never thought that up, Helen," said Aunt Emmy, "that's Mrs. Strong. She always talks as though she was living in a story book, poor, silly, little thing."

Helen blushed and Aunt Emmy went on—"Do you know what it means to administer an estate, especially a big one like Mr. Strong's?"

"Why, no," stammered Helen, "but it must be simple."

Aunt Emmy sniffed. "Simple! Let me tell you a little about it. When a man dies the things he owns cease for a time to be anybody's property and become his estate. The property passes from his control on his death naturally, and as his estate it is controlled and supervised by the Court which will be in charge of the estate for many months probably. First this Court finds out whether or not there is a will and if the will is valid. Then it must find out about the executor. If the will is properly drawn and valid, it will be 'admitted to probate.' The persons who witnessed it must be found and examined.

"The executor must satisfy the Court as to fitness and willingness to perform the many arduous duties involved. Perhaps he will have to furnish a bond, to assure the Court of his financial responsibility. He must assemble all the so-called assets, have them valued and file an inventory and appraisal of them with the Court. All the debts against the estate must be collected. The settlement of all claims against persons and corporations is a job no one without a thorough knowledge of business can undertake.

"In an estate like Mr. Strong's there is sure to be a certain amount of financial negotiation that demands banking knowledge. Then the executor must pay claims against the estate in the order of precedence laid down by law. Also you know state inheritance and federal estate taxes must be met promptly. Finally, after the estate is settled as to claims it has and claims against it, the executor must see that the various bequests are made."

"Oh, Aunty, don't tell me any more. I never thought that there were so many complicated things to be done. Poor Mrs. Strong never knew a thing about business."

"Mr. Strong knew that," remarked Aunt Emmy dryly, "and don't you suppose he had his children in mind, too? He wanted his estate handled so that the children and Mrs. Strong would be protected and assured of a good, comfortable living all their lives, with something to go on to the grandchildren. Even if Mrs. Strong were a business woman, no one could tell how long she would live to administer the estate. He knew that the trust company would not die, nor lose its faculties, nor be influenced by personal feeling so that it might be unjust to some one, and that it represents some of the best business and banking judgment in town."

"Well, I guess old man Strong knew what he was doing!" said Helen.—Anne B. Aymes.

The more recently adopted method of killing the common barberry which spreads black stem rust of small grains is by the use of such chemicals as salt and kerosene, according to the Department of Agriculture These methods have several advantages over the digging method formerly used. They are less laborious cheaper and more certain. This is especially true if bushes are growing in stony ground where digging is difficult. Department Circular 356 tells all about how to use this method.—Banker-Farmer.
